DEATH OF MRS. S. EVANS

Susanna, relict of the late William O. Evans, passed peacefully away at her home here on Tuesday at 9 p.m., following an illness of many months.

Mrs. Evans had been a sufferer from diabetes. She was in her seventieth year, and is survived by sons Thomas, of Calgary; Gwilym, of Saunders; Albert of Calgary; William John, late of Medicine Hat, and Merwin, of Spokane; and daughters, Blodwyn (Mrs. Owen Morgan), of Saunders, and Lillian (Mrs. Peterson), late of Spokane. She was predeceased by her husband eleven years ago.

Mrs. Evans was well known throughout The Pass, coming here in the early days with her husband from Wales. She was a past grand of the local Rebekah Lodge, and a highly esteemed member of other organizations.

Funeral arrangements are in the hands of the Crownest Undertaking Co., and we understand services will be held on Sunday afternoon at the local United church, the remains to be laid to rest in the local cemetery.

With the bereaved ones we extend our sympathy.

A MERRY CHRISTMAS (?)

Battling snow, wind, water and frost every day was the experience of most of the residents and business people of Blairmore during the Christmas week.

Business was seriously handicapped through the storms, homes and business places suffered from a water deluge, filling basements to an average depth of from two to six feet, flooding furnaces, drenching coal and wood supplies and other goods ordinarily stored there. Some of the main street stores suffered seriously, some to the extent of thousands of dollars. Among the heaviest sufferers were Thompson & Co., Mark Sartoris, Plunkett & Savage, P. Ghardoi, and some other stores along the east end of Victoria street. Considerable damage also resulted to the water works, and a large number of house connections were put out of commission, and in most cases it may be months before service is restored.

The town's fire department worked heroically under the direct supervision of Mayor Knight, who stayed with the rescue gang from the start. On Sunday, with an east blizzard sweeping in with a 30-below temperature, it became necessary to resort to the rum ration as men battled with powder and dynamite to release water that had become choked in the main river. Following about thirty hours work at that point, pressure was considerably released and water has since been receding from flooded premises. At time of going to press, the town's efforts are being confined to Lyon Creek, which became blocked at several points, causing water to seep into main street premises. Danger has now practically passed, as far as east Blairmore is concerned, and citizens hope to be in a position to enjoy their Christmas some time in 1934.

Water is reported still on the rise in east Blairmore, and plans are now under way to cope with the situation.

NEW YEAR'S PARTY AT COLE'S

Cole's theatre has certainly been fortunate in securing such an excellent programme for the New Year's, Monday, January 1st. "The Conquering Sex" has just been released in Canada and Cole's theatre will be the first theatre in Alberta to present it.

The original title of the picture was "The Prizefighter and the Lady," but is now changed to "The Conquering Sex," because it was found that under the first title too many ladies were making the mistake of thinking it was a man's picture.

The picture has everything—dancing, singing and an excellent story and just enough love theme to make things interesting! But don't forget about the big fight. You see Max and Primo fight a real championship fight that beats any heavyweight battle ever screened.

And don't forget you can reserve seats for parties by phoning Cole's theatre. Car storage at Green's garage.

Read these criticisms on "The Conquering Sex" ("The Prizefighter and the Lady"), which is showing at Cole's theatre as a special New Year's programme.

A great film. Maxie is the year's greatest find, does everything; fights, sings, dances. You'll get a tremendous kick out of this one.—Screen Book.

HILLCREST HAPPENINGS

Mr. and Mrs. F. White are rejoicing over the birth of a son.

Miss E. Strachan left Saturday for her home near Calgary, where she is spending the Christmas holiday.

J. Collins is spending the Christmas holidays at his home in Calgary.

J. Semancek had the misfortune of being hurt at the mine here.

The annual Christmas school concert was held on Thursday evening last in the Union hall. The large audience declared it to be the best of all such concerts so far held, the credit going to the teachers, Misses B. Sellen, A. Martin, E. Strachan, I. Turner and E. Hart, and Messrs. W. Brushett, J. Collins, D. Grant and W. Webster; and accompanists Misses Isabel Westrup and Jean Cruickshank. The programme follows: opening by our national anthem "O Canada;" school girls' chorus, two Christmas songs; selection by the school string orchestra, under conductorship of Mr. W. H. Moser; Christmas bell drill by Grades I. and II. boys and girls; series of recitations on Christmas in other lands by Grade V. girls; group of Grade V. boys and girls in carol songs; flag drill by Grade III.; sword dance by Jeanie Douglas; drill by Grade II. boys, representing the hours of Christmas; chorus by Grade IV. "The Big Bad Wolf," under conductorship of Miss A. Martin, was much enjoyed; sketch by Grade VII., "A Slight Mistake;" action song by Grade IV. The first half of the programme concluded with the chairman's address, Mr. Brushett, and presentation of books and medals to the pupils standing first in the June examinations, books as follows: Grade I., Helen Kybach; Grade II., Viole Cassagrande; Grade III., Mary Waka luk; Grade IV., Anna McNeill; Grade V., Olga Tellick; Grade VI., June Penn; Grade VII., Pauline Festay Grade VIII., Tony Rossi. The high school pupils received medals as follows: Grade IX., Edna Evans; Grade X., Helen Rose and Isabel Westrup. Programme continued with: shadow play by Grade VI.; recitation by Grade V. girls; action song by Grade IV., entitled "Six Little Milkmaids;" solo, "Bye Baby Bunting" by Der Thomas; recitation by Mabel Morgan; minstrel show by Grade III. Mickey and Minnie clog dance by Mary Fumagalli and Gracie Lofe sketch by Grade VII., "Meeting of Ghosts;" song by school girls' chorus.

J. Calderwood was a visitor over Christmas at his mother's home at Kew.

A successful smoking concert and turkey draw was held in the Miners clubrooms on Friday evening.

The Canada Cafe, owned and operated by Zeke and Wong, was totally destroyed by fire in the early hours of the day after Christmas. Zeke and Wong, and another Chinaman, were the only persons in the building at the time, and they narrowly escaped with their lives. The fire is supposed to have originated in the basement. Wong, who has been ill lately, felt the effects of exposure and was removed to the local hospital. He is greatly improved, and is out of danger. There was a certain amount of insurance on the building and furniture, but the large Christmas stock being carried was not insured.

SANTA CLAUS IN TROUBLE

In his efforts to negotiate the huge snow drifts around Blairmore on Christmas Eve, Santa Claus had the misfortune to lose a brand new upper set of false teeth which he had purchased before leaving Baffin's Land. Just where they disappeared he could not recall, but asked us to run a notice, requesting the finder to return same to The Enterprise as soon as he or she was through using them.

Local district merchants, because of the storm, appreciated the fact that local people were to a larger extent than usual obliged to buy at home. Of course, the mail-order houses got a large share of the business for which local business people are being taxed.

Smothering Sensations Faint and Dizzy Spells

Those feelings of faintness; those dizzy spells; those agonizing smothering sensations which come over people, from time to time, are warnings that should not go unheeded. They indicate an extremely weakened condition of the nervous and vital organs, and should be given immediate attention. Those suffering in this way will find in Milburn's H. and N. Pills a remedy with which to re-establish their health, build up their run down system, and bring back their vigor.

Ask your druggist for Milburn's H. & N. PILLS.

Christianity And The Crisis

Much has been said and written about the economic crisis against which the peoples of the world have been battling for four years without availing much. Many speeches have been made, world statements have had their say. Many books, many editorials, many articles have been published in which the economists have set forth their views—but speeches, books, editorials and articles have but served to illustrate the complexity and variety of the problems which clamor for solution. Many remedies have been suggested for the economic ills from which mankind is suffering, but the doctors have been far from unanimous in their proposed treatments and, consequently, the patient can scarcely be blamed for his hesitation to apply the cure prescribed. Despite the clash of expert opinion, however, the patients themselves have given abundant evidence of vitality which is, perhaps, the surest sign of their ultimate recovery. They have displayed a keen determination to think things out for themselves, to seek a way out of present difficulties and a way back to a prosperity which they are determined to make permanent.

One of the best contributions to the "non-expert" thought upon the crisis and the various problems contributing to, and arising from, post-war economic difficulties, is the series of articles recently published in a single volume under the title, "Christianity and the Crisis". The contributors are churchmen, clerical or lay, but their method of approach to the various phases of their subject is not made from the purely theological angle. When they discuss the confusions of the present situation, they write with knowledge of their subject, and this is true whether they write of intellectual and moral confusion (which might, of course, be expected) or of social, economic and international confusion (which, on the other hand, might not have been expected). One is forced early to the conclusion that these churchmen are no mere visionaries actuated by high moral purpose but divorced from practical affairs. One would for example have to travel far to equal the masterly simplicity of the discussion of financial and monetary problems contributed by Dr. Hewlett Johnson, Dean of Canterbury. One is not surprised to learn that besides being a Doctor of Divinity, the Dean has degrees in Science and Engineering.

The preface furnishes the general theme upon which the volume is based, and the thought which should be an inspiration to all who, having given serious thought to the problems of the hour, are beginning to doubt whether final solution is possible. Drawing a parallel between the years following the battle of Waterloo and the present time, the preface states:

"A period of post-war exhaustion had begun in 1815, as in 1918, with its social antagonism and moral confusion, and civil disturbances more violent than anything we have known this time in England or America. Yet the religious accumulation of moral power had been so simple that the foundation of civil and religious liberty had been already laid, the establishment of democratic government had begun, slavery had been abolished.

"It is the belief of those who are contributing to 'Christianity and the Crisis' that the same moral power, as with us today, because the same religious spirit is at work—is, indeed, as most close observers believe, emerging now with greater strength from the confusions and disloyalties of the post-war decade.

"The issue, indeed, is simple. The motives and methods of human life are not sufficiently moralized: it was to moralize the machinery of production, to limit the power of selfishness, that Wilberforce and Shaftesbury were working a century ago; but in many ways industry and business, and family life, and civic and political activity, need further moralization. Money has been permitted to run its unbridled and unbridled machinery, and, because the nations and their representatives have not yet learned the moral elements of international behavior, we stand at this moment on the brink of irretrievable disaster."

The way out then is for application of the moral teachings of Christianity in international, national, civic, business and family life according to the churchmen who, having examined the problems of the hour, discern the need and point the method.

Crime Against Youth

Hon. R. J. Manion Denounces War in Emphatic Terms

War was denounced in emphatic terms by Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways and Canals, and Canadian representative at the recent disarmament conference at Geneva in an address before the Women's Canadian Club at Ottawa.

"One hundred years from today, or possibly sooner, we will be looked upon as barbarians for permitting war to exist," the minister declared. "War is a crime against youth—the elders make the blunders and youth pays the price."

On this continent the nations were peace loving. "War is as unthinkable between Canada and the United States as between Canada and the United Kingdom, or indeed between the United States and the United Kingdom," Dr. Manion observed.

Something New For Dances

When the Gordon Highlanders with their swaying kilts and bagpipes and drums, arrived in Copenhagen, Denmark, for the opening of the British exhibition, they attracted nearly as much attention as the Prince of Wales who opened the show. The Dairs had never seen men in kilts except on the films, and the novelty aroused great interest.

Great Masterpieces

To Be Shown At British Art Exhibition

Great masterpieces from Buckingham Palace and Windsor Castle will be shown to the public for the first time at the Royal Academy Exhibition of British art, and covers the period from primitives to the year 1866.

The King's generous contributions to the exhibition include the following: From Buckingham Palace: Diana and Actaeon (Thomas Gainsborough); Blind Man's Buff, Penny Wedding (Sir David Wilkie).

From Windsor Castle: The Duke and Duchess of Cumberland, the Duchess of Cumberland, Mrs. Robinson, sketch (Thomas Gainsborough); Garrick and his wife (William Hogarth); Queen Victoria Riding Out (Sir Francis Grant); Bathurst, Scott (Sir Thomas Lawrence); Two Corporals and a Private, the Prince of Wales on Horseback (George Stubbs); Lord Spencer Hamilton, (Francis Wheatley); Life Class at the Royal Academy, Queen Charlotte and two sons (Johann Zoffany); Portrait of a Princess, Princess Mary, (John Hoppner).

From Hampton Court Palace: Princess Mary as Diana (Sir Peter Lely).

Would Tag Offenders

The government should take stronger measures and deal with the careless motorist in such a way as to bring home to him his responsibility. Fines and jail sentences seem to have no effect in reducing reckless driving. This paper again suggests that a red tag be ordered attached to every car driven by a motorist who has been fined.—Sault Daily Star.

Soviets Take Quarter Crop

But Peasants Allowed to Sell Surplus in Private Market

The Soviet government had been informed that collection of the 1933 grain crop from the peasantry had been completed.

About 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 metric tons were obtained, foreign observers understood, by forced purchase at fixed prices set by the administration. (The metric ton is 2,200 pounds).

The grain, amounting to about 25 per cent of the total production, will be devoted to feeding the urban population and the army, export and reserves.

In his report, addressed to Joseph Stalin, leader of the Communist party, Chairman Chervov of the agricultural section of the council of people's commissars, pointed out that 1933 deliveries were completed from a month to two months ahead of last year when collections were limited by a poor crop. The full quotas had been reached.

Another innovation was to allow the peasants to sell their surplus production to private markets, as contrasted with the former procedure of taking a fixed proportion of whatever was produced.

The price of bread, which still is the principal item of the Russian diet, has decreased considerably recently as a result of the sale of the excess grain.

Chervov called special attention to inauguration of a system of political sections which this year assumed administrative control of every administrative unit.

Hoppers in Alberta

Insects Damaged About 11 per cent. Of Crop Last Year

Grasshoppers did about 11 per cent damage to the crops in Alberta last summer, but measures taken to fight them saved 44 per cent according to information based on reports and estimates by the department of agriculture. An area of 3,625,000 acres owned by 10,900 farmers was affected.

It is expected that there will be another visitation by hoppers next year, with possibly 5,000,000 acres of infested area. While the territory affected will be larger, the infestation will not be so heavy, it is believed, and a campaign of about the same proportion as this year is anticipated. The insects will probably advance northward as far as Alliance and Elora.

Urges Precautionary Measures

Experimental Farm Superintendent Speaks On Hopper Menace

South Saskatchewan and parts of Alberta face the possibility of a "25 per cent crop" unless precautions are taken against the grasshopper menace. Roy E. Smith, superintendent of the Gull Lake Experimental Farm, told members of the board of trade at Calgary.

Tablet For Blind Man

In memory of "Blind Fred," a blind man, who every day for more than 40 years used to sit in Hackney churchyard, London, a tablet has been unveiled in the churchyard by the mayor of Hackney. It bears the inscription: "Hereby was seen for many years Blind Fred, a sunny soul."

Stable Money

Prime Minister Bennett Speaks On Stable Medium Of Exchange

During the years of world depression Canada maintained her reputation of "delivering the goods according to the sample." Prime Minister R. B. Bennett told the members of the Dominion Commercial Travellers' Association at their annual banquet at Montreal.

Mr. Bennett spoke briefly, taking as his subject the development of money as legal tender from the days of barter and tokens. The address was non-political.

No one appreciated more keenly than commercial travellers the necessity of having a stable medium of exchange for trade purposes. Mr. Bennett said, after outlining the history of money from the beginning of civilization. The world conferences had been prevented from dealing with this problem which he said remained a barrier to complete recovery in world trade conditions.

Mr. Bennett described the functions and need of a central bank in a country such as Canada which gravitated between fifth and sixth place in the world of trading nations, but did not enlarge upon this phase of the legislative program being prepared for the forthcoming session of parliament.

Fully 95 per cent of the business of the country was now being carried on by the use of paper of no intrinsic value beyond the confidence of the recipient in the buyer's promise to pay, the prime minister said. As the credit of an individual depended upon his reputation for redeeming his promises, so did the credit of a country depend upon the manner in which it fulfilled its contracts.

Made Legion Member

Hon. MacKenzie King Is Honored By Canadian Legion

The ex-service men of Canada contributed to the enjoyment of the 59th birthday of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, leader of the Liberal party, when in the presence of high executives of the C.M.C., R.C., Dominion president, presented Mr. King with the gold badge and certificate of honorary life membership in that association. In so doing the Legion consummated the formalities of admission to this restricted group of honorary life members which were initiated on July 28, 1930.

On that date Mr. King, as prime minister of Canada, became the first of that number, and at the same time, Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett then leader of the opposition was also honored in this fashion by the Legion. Mr. Bennett received his credentials on Armistice Day, 1932, following the March past of the veterans on Parliament Hill.

Presenting Mr. King with the badge and certificate, Major Roper recalled that the ceremony coincided with the Liberal leader's 59th birthday, and, in a way, partook of the character of a birthday gift. He tendered his congratulations to Mr. King, voicing the wish that he might have many years before him whereon to render service to his country.

Laurier House, in which the ceremony took place, was redolent of memories, chief among which was that of service to Canada; it recalled vividly a great statesman whom all Canadians had honored and whose memory was revered throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Mr. King assured Major Roper that outside of—and perhaps side by side with—the honors which the Canadian people had conferred on him first by appointing him leader of a great party and then by electing him prime minister of Canada, he could conceive of none more worthy to be cherished than that of being admitted to that fraternity of ex-service men who, in the hour of their country's need, had offered their lives for Canada. He assured the Dominion officers and through them the war veterans of this country as a whole, that he would continue to keep their welfare and their interests close at heart.

New Planes Comfortable

Flying Boats For Mediterranean Service Are Greatly Admired

Comfort has received considerable attention in the latter built big passenger planes. Staff accommodation in the new "Forth" class flying boats in the Mediterranean service, has earned many admiring comments.

Amidships, for example, is the officers' quarters or wardroom. This is equipped with a hinged pneumatic settee berth on either side, which can be folded up to give ample floor space. Each berth is fitted with lifelines and could be used as a raft in emergency. Behind the berths are lockers for kit and canteens for food and crockery. A detachable hanging mahogany table with metal tubular supports is slung from the frames overhead when needed; when not in use it can be stored away under the starboard berth.

The wardroom is insulated against excessive noise. Huge electric fans at the side ports provide ventilation when the boat is anchored. There is plenty of room; when berths and table are stowed away the clear space measures seven feet in length and breadth and six feet in height. At the rear of the room is the engineer's station, equipped with oil and water thermometers, oil pressure gauges, a watch and radiator shutter controls. Dividing the wardroom from the men's quarters is a watertight bulkhead, fitted with a swing door.

Saskatchewan Wheat Pool

Mr. L. C. Brouillette To Head Pool For Another Year

L. C. Brouillette will head the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool another year, it was decided at a meeting of the newly elected board of directors, at Regina.

All the old officers, executive and representatives to the Central Board were re-elected as follows:

Vice-President: J. H. Wesson, Maitland; executive: Brooks Catton, Hanley, A. F. Sprule, La Fleche; and Leonard Widdup, Kipling; representatives to the Central Board: L. C. Brouillette, J. H. Wesson and Brooks Catton.

Fifteen of the 16 returning directors were re-elected, the only new member of the board being A. D. Young, Cymric, representing district No. 9.

New Tax Regulations

Saskatchewan Minister Is Given the Power to Determine Income Tax Payable

Providing that where it is impossible to obtain the information required to ascertain the income within the province of Saskatchewan, the minister may, through the lieutenant-governor-in-council, fix or determine the tax to be paid, new regulations governing the collection of income taxes within and without the province of Saskatchewan have been provided for by order-in-council.

This provision, it is stated, is necessary in view of the fact that some corporations or joint stock companies operating in Saskatchewan in addition to other provinces, in some instances have not a system of accounting which definitely fixes, by province, the actual income from their transactions.

In the case of interest, dividends, rents and royalties, however, shall be separately determined, less their proportionate share of deductions.

The remainder of the income from the taxpayer liable to taxation shall be taken to be such percentage of the remainder of the income as the sales within the province bear to the total sales.

These new regulations for determining the income tax assessment of extra provincial corporations will not be applied in cases where the method or system of accounting used by the corporation enables the income tax commissioner to determine the actual income derived from the business actually transacted within the province.

Public Opinion Rules

Even Governments Cannot Long Disregard Settled Adverse Opinion

"The world is coming more and more to be governed by public opinion, states Newton D. Baker, of Cleveland. Even in governments where that does not seem to be true, in the last analysis no rule or system of rule is strong enough long to disregard a settled adverse public opinion.

Public opinion seems to be the result of two forces. One is the accuracy of knowledge and the other is character and when you know how much knowledge a man has and how much character he has you can predict the result of those two things and forecast his course of action. And so it seems to be about nations.

The only hope of mankind where adult knowledge is a factor of public opinion, is a continuous process of education.

Night Air

Is Found to Contain One-Third More Radio-Active Material Than in Daytime

A new discovery about the night air has been made, and it is a little so unhealthful, showing that people who breathe it take into their systems one-third more radio-active matter than in the daytime, was explained by Carnegie Institution scientists.

In large enough amounts, radioactive material in the body can be very harmful, as illustrated by people who drank "radium water" and wetted brushes full of radium paint with their lips to paint watch dials.

Numberless Numbers

Some Remarkable Figures In Connection With Counting Molecules

If we try to count the number of molecules contained in one cubic millimetre of hydrogen gas, first arranging them in groups of a billion each, it would take a thousand years to count these groups. In a drop of water there are about 2,000,000,000,000,000,000 molecules. If one of these molecules were magnified till it appeared twenty feet in diameter, the atom of which it is composed would look like floating specks of dust, and each atom is like a solar system.

Claimed First Flight

Earl Jahn, who claimed to have been the first man to fly, died a few weeks ago in Hanover, Germany, at the age of 60. He declared that he beat the Wright brothers into the air by three months, by flying his own home-made motored plane on August 18, 1908.

SYNOPSIS

Camilla Hoyt, young and beautiful art student, and Peter Anson, a struggling sculptor, fall in love and marry secretly, deciding to live apart until the time Peter can establish himself. Camilla, the adopted daughter of wealthy parents, is not to inherit money when she comes of age. She is preparing herself for life with a course in commercial art, hoping to get a job to enable her to support herself. She has been making the rounds of the agencies, Peter, working in his studio on an idea for a figure with which he hopes to win a scholarship to study abroad, receives a call from a beautiful model, Sylvia Todd, who offers to work for almost nothing if he will employ her. He cannot afford a model but promises to think it over. Peter discusses the matter of a model with Camilla and decides to employ Miss Todd. Together Camilla and Peter decide on the figure. They are at the height of their happiness. At home Sylvia Todd receives a mysterious phone call. Peter begins work on his piece for the exhibit and Camilla, at Peter's summer home, is a bit disconsolate without him. Avis Werth, one of Camilla's friends, who is in love with Peter himself, suggests that she and Camilla and Terry Wayne drive into town to get Peter for a party. Working with Miss Todd, Peter discovers she is also employed by Gus Matson, his former room-mate, who once tried to take Camilla from him and with whom Peter had quarrelled. Camilla and Avis arrive to take Peter off to the party. He goes, but being without money, slipped away to a nearby pawn shop for a few minutes to pawn his watch.

(Now Go On With The Story)

CHAPTER XXIII

"How much for that?" demanded Peter, laying his watch upon the scratched counter, over which innumerable articles had passed from desperate and reluctant hands.

"The little bearded proprietor squinted up near-sightedly at Peter's towering height. He cleared his throat doubtfully and picked up the watch in experienced hands."

"Oh, it's a good one," Peter encouraged. "It bought it in more flush times when I was young and giddy," observed the little man, slyly, and peered at him with a twinkle.

"That may be," Peter agreed. "But I need all you can give me. It'll be back for the watch next Wednesday."

"Um. That's what they all say. Five dollars," was the brisk ultimatum.

"Oh, say listen, man. I have to have ten. Nobody can what time it is these days," he spread his hands and shrugged his shoulders with elaborate boredom.

"Can't you stretch a point this time and even it up on some fellow who doesn't need it as much as I do?"

"Everybody thinks he needs money worse than anyone else," immovably. "All right, I'll take the watch back. I may need it worse than the money, after all," carelessly.

The man rubbed his fingers over the case and squinted at it again. Finally, "Well, ten dollars, but I'll never get that for it if you don't show up to claim it."

"Don't worry, I'll be back," Peter assured him with relief. He paced the floor of the dusty shop with impatience, while the owner procured the money and the claim check.

"What tragic needs and hardships the old collection of objects represented. Peter felt woefully depressed in their surroundings."

The man returned from his dusty little deck in the rear of the store. "Hope you have a good time with the girl," he remarked with a twinkle, as he handed the ticket and the ten-dollars to Peter.

He grinned appreciation of his shrewd conjecture. "How'd you know?"

"Well, men mostly hook their possessions for three or four reasons. They're hungry, or want liquor, or havin' family troubles or need money to spend on a girl. You don't look hungry, you're not drunk and you look too happy to have family troubles, so—" again, he spread his hands and smiled sagaciously.

"Okay! Thanks, I'll be seeing you later," Peter called, hurrying off. The ten dollars was a memento of what he needed, but it was better than being broke. His spirits rose rapidly as he turned along the street, and for the first time he rejoiced in the thought of being near Camilla for almost two days. It would amount to that, for there would be little sleep on that night for the participants of the house party, the labyrinthine way by which he had reached the shop, he joined the three agents and they resumed their speeding way across the park and out the boulevard which followed along the lake shore.

The rush of wind prevented conversation with the two in front, so Peter devoted himself to Avis, who responded with exuberant spirits.

"So you're working for the exhibit, I hear," she remarked confidentially. "I supposed that was what you were covering when we went in, but I don't finish in time. That's why I shouldn't be running away to play like I do."

"There's nothing much to see, yet," he evaded. "I'll have to work faster if I finish in time. That's why I shouldn't be running away to play like I do."

"But you shouldn't work all the time, especially in this terrible heat," with deep concern. "Have you a model?"

"Had to have. Couldn't afford one but had to take a sporting chance."

"Oh! May I—help?" solicitously. "Well, it's not as bad as that, I mean that he's not after brusquely. I mean that if I don't win, it will take me awhile to recover the loss."

"I'll do all I can in your favor," he leaned against him to confide.

"Oh, said, don't you try to influence the judges!" he drew back with dismay. He had quite forgotten his conversation with Avis on the night of the dance, about her uncle being on the scholarship committee, until this moment.

"Why shouldn't I?" she insisted. "I told you why," he replied humbly. "Besides, you couldn't do it. Probably be more likely to hurt whatever chance I did have. But if you don't promise to stay out of it, I'll not enter."

She smiled at him as if with relief and admiration. "Peter dear, I was only testing you. I knew you were on the level, but I wanted to prove it."

He also was relieved, but puzzled. "Why should you want to prove anything about me?" he asked tentatively.

Again, she leaned heavily against him with the swerving motion of the car as it wound along the boulevard curves. "Because I like you a lot."

"That's nice," he said, after a moment, and as if the confusion were a little gone. He wondered what Avis would say and think if she knew that it was his wife who rode in front of them with Terry. He resolved then that something would have to be done about this situation. He must persuade Camilla to announce their marriage, even though they continued to live apart. He had not favored the idea of secrecy from the beginning, but he appreciated Camilla's situation.

Everything was alright, so long as others were not involved. But there was Sylvia, and now Avis; and there was Terry before him, smiling into Camilla's eyes and no doubt anticipating as profitably an evening in her favor as Avis was planning.

He would get Camilla to announce the surprise this evening.

But he had no opportunity to talk with Camilla alone until late that night. As soon as they arrived at the cottage, there were cocktails and then everyone returned to the beach and the water.

At the insistence of the others, Camilla dived another series for Peter's benefit. He was amazed at her skill. Modest little thing, he thought, who never boasted of what she could do.

And she could do so many things well. She was so wonderful that he didn't half deserve her.

She swam ashore after the somersault dive and scampered over the sand toward the beachhouse. Presently, there sounded the pulsing of a motor within, and she guided a speed boat through the slip into the lake. "Come on, everyone," she called, "we're going to crash into the setting sun. No speed limit and no traffic."

When they were several miles out, Camilla stopped the motor and they dived and swam about for awhile like frolicking seals around an island rock.

Peter managed once to be with Camilla alone for a few minutes, clinging to the rods along the side of the boat while they talked. "What's the idea of Terry acting like a fance?" he smiled.

"Sorry, Peter, but we have to play the game, now that we've started. No fouls, now. We have to win. It makes me laugh the way we're putting it over on Avis, though," she chuckled. "She always was a cat, but I don't mind scratching a little, for if she were anyone else, I'd feel sorry for her."

"But Ca—" he began, when they were interrupted by the decision that everyone wanted to go ashore. There were shower-equipped dressing rooms over the beachhouse, where shouts and laughter and splashing water made pandemonium for a short time, then everyone sank wearily into swings and chairs on the screened veranda to await dinner. Someone suggested a rubber of bridge. Some declined languidly, others insisted avidly.

"How much?" Cathie asked, "penny a point?"

"Penny!" scoffed Warren Selaby. "Better make it a dollar. I have to get back that two hundred I lost to Terry the other night. The old man won't pay my allowance 'till it's due, if I starved."

"Starved," thought Camilla. "He has no idea what the word means. And I wonder what he thinks he does to deserve an allowance."

"Oh, make it ten point for this time," Cathie insisted. "Remember, this is no stag game. You're playing with girls."

"Okay," approved Terry. "Make it snappy then. Come on, Anson."

For the second time that day, panic seized Peter. He had leaped nearly from the electric grill into the furnace, to make the metaphor modern. How could he play bridge for ten cents a point with ten dollars in his pocket? Besides, he was no champion at the game, having devoted practically no time to it as compared with those idlers who played for hours of every day and night.

Old Legend Shattered

Cow Bay Not Named After Old Settler's Bovine

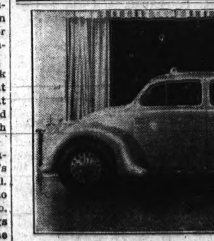

Origin of the name given Cow Bay, Cape Breton, still remains a mystery but old legend that for years has surrounded it has been shattered. Evidence disproving the old story that the bay was named after John Melnoy's bovine was submitted by a special committee, consisting of Judge Walter Cross, Dr. W. F. Egan and E. T. McKee, recognized historians. They found the old settler's cow had not even appeared when the bay was first named.

Entertain the Passengers

Passengers in subways of Berlin were being entertained by vaudeville performances given by unemployed artists, who buy tickets, board the trains, then throw off their jackets and give balancing and acrobatic acts. Passing the hat brings good results. Singers and other professional entertainers are taking up the idea and find the best paying audiences in the business sections of the railway system.

British Insurance

Britain's 47,000,000 people held life insurance worth $5,176,027,085 at the end of 1931, according to statistics just issued by the Industrial Assurance Commissioner. Policies numbered 63,948,191, an increase of nearly 2,000,000 over 1930. Claims cost the companies $141,560,000.

New Appliance Used

Appliances for Transfusion of Blood Has Many Advantages

A demonstration was given at Leeds General Infirmary of a new appliance for the transfusion of blood. The demonstration was given by two Parisian surgeons—M. Becart and M. Frauchet—who first showed their appliance in Paris a fortnight earlier.

The great advantages of the new method are that it prevents the exposure of the blood to the air and maintains its temperature. The appliance consists of a small electric appliance with two tubes, one taking the blood from the donor and the other transmitting it to the patient.

Prefer To Walk Down

Number of People Use Elevator Only One Way

It is a law of physics that "what goes up must come down," but imagine scientific embarrassment when mathematical figures show that of the 18,000 persons who use the elevators in the New Federal building at Boston, daily, 8,500 persons go up, but the cars carry only 7,500 down.

But it was all cleared up when the building authorities revealed that the discrepancy is due to the desire of some to indulge in stair-walking exercise. But they all take the less vigorous form—walking down instead of up.

Urges 400th Anniversary of Landing of Cartier Be Recognized

Public recognition throughout Canada of the 400th anniversary next year of the landing of Jacques Cartier on the shores of Canada was brought before the Dominion-Provincial Transport Conference by Prime Minister R. B. Bennett.

"There is a very urgent demand for the general recognition of this anniversary," the prime minister said. The occasion might involve a "national recognition of what in reality was the laying of the foundation of western civilization in this country."

Europe Buying Apples

Canadian Growers Get Better Prices from Purchasers on Continent

With much better prices being received in the markets on the European continent, Annapolis Valley apple shippers have switched their trade from England to foreign ports.

A glut of the fruit on the English market sent prices to low levels and already several cargoes have gone forward to Rotterdam, the fruit being destined largely for continental points.

Chapel Built Of Logs

Novel Architecture Used In Building at Cowichan, B.C.

Of novel architecture yet fitting in with the fine background, the new Queen Margaret's school chapel at Cowichan is a monument to the generosity and loyalty of present and former members of the school.

It is a log structure, but instead of the usual manner of construction, in which round logs are mated to fit at the corners, they are fitted by a system of driftbolts, which are invisible when the logs are in place, and allow for expansion of settling. The idea of using this style of architecture came from C. Stone, who also arranged the drift-bolt system with special regard to the needs of the chapel. He went to the trouble of erecting a piece of wall at Hillcrest for demonstration.

The building is 20 feet by 60 feet, exclusive of the vestry, and will accommodate 120 persons. The top of the bell tower is 25 feet above the ground and the top of the wall 16 feet. The material came from Hillcrest, including specially cut timbers which were tongued and grooved for the gable ends. Douglas James was the architect and O. C. Brown the contractor.

YOU AND I

Who are they whom labor brings Boons too blessed to deny, Telling on with heart that sings? You and I!

Who are they who learn at last Wise men put vain longings by, And, so learning, leave the past? You and I!

Who are they who seek and gain Tender heart and seeing eye, As the rich rewards of pain? You and I!

Who are they who often find As the days so swiftly fly, Just how good life is, how kind? You and I!

Can Choose For Itself

Irish Free State at Liberty to Break With Britain

The Irish Free State is a republic in fact if not in name. Its chosen leader has repudiated all co-operation with Britain and the Empire while seeking only to retain the trade benefits that accrue to Empire countries.

The British government has nothing to hope from efforts to reconcile the irreconcilable. The Irish Free State should not be allowed to take itself outside the British Empire merely to the extent that it wishes to take itself out.

The only way of dealing finally with the situation is for the British government to invite the Free State all the way out.

If the Irish Free State wishes to have no political association with Britain and the Empire countries that will be the loss of the Free State, not the loss of Britain or of the British Commonwealth. The decision is of its own choosing. The economic consequences of such a severance will be its own responsibility.

Figures Show Canada Has Highest With Exception of Belgium

When it comes to the percentage of population employed in the civil service, or public service, Canada has the highest percentage except little Belgium. According to Prof. Cole, the noted economist, the percentage of population employed in the United States is 1.3; England, with public services and armed forces combined, 1.5; France, 2.6; Germany, 2; Italy, 1.5; Poland 0.8; Sweden 1.1; Belgium 3.3; Denmark, 0.118; Holland, 1.1; Australia, 1.7; New Zealand, 1; Canada, 2.8—Lethbridge Herald.

Walking Keeps One Young
There is no better way to keep walking to old age than to keep walking was illustrated the other day. Dr. John H. Finlay, a former university president and now a newspaper editor, one of the most distinguished and honored citizens of New York, celebrated his 70th birthday by footing the distance around Manhattan Island, over 25 miles. He gave this advice to those who wish to enjoy life: "Read a book, make a friend and take a walk."—Edmonton Journal.

Little Helps For This Week

Well done good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord.—Matthew 25:23. O Father, help us to resign

Our hearts, our strength, our wills to Thee. Then even lowliest work of Thine, Most noble, blest, and sweet will be.

Nothing is too little to be offered by our Father, nothing too little in which to see His hand, nothing touches our souls too little to accept from Him, nothing too little to be done by Him.

A soul occupied with great ideas best performs small duties, the divinest views of life penetrate most clearly into the meanest emergencies; so far from petty principles being best proportioned to petty trials, a heavenly spirit taking up its abode with us can alone master well the daily toils and tranquilly pass the humiliations of our conditions.

Tuberculosis Tests Will Be Continued

But Ottawa Is Abandoning System of Cow-Testing

The system of cow-testing under the direction of the Federal department of Agriculture, will be abandoned.

Under this system records were kept by the department of milk production, quality, etc., with an idea of improving dairy herds in various parts of the Dominion. The majority of provinces, however, has not taken over this work, and the federal authorities consider that it is time to turn the responsibility completely over to the provinces.

Provinces which have not been doing the work thus far are being notified of the decision. The province of Quebec is one of these.

The cow-testing system has nothing to do with the tuberculin test which the Dominion authorities conduct for the prevention of disease among cattle. This, it is stated by the department of agriculture officials is not being abandoned, but will be continued.
